Sponsoring iDSC'21

The International Data Science Conference (iDSC) has been established to be a key event for the Data Science community, both locally in Central Europe, and for a wider, global audience. Here industry practitioners come together with applied researchers to share views, develop strategies and pursue solutions to shared challenges. The program reflects this unique approach, consisting of current research presentations combined with contributions from industry and civil society on the pressing issues of data-driven applications.

Sponsors of the iDSC'21 are invited to take this opportunity to underscore their role as active members of the international data science community, present their products to an interested audience, and engage directly with other practitioners.

The 2021 edition of iDSC is hosted by the AIT Austrian Institute of Technology. To ensure the long-term success of the event, further organizations and institutes from around the world are integrated in the Program Committee. In this way, it is ensured that this years conference provides the most current and relevant contribution to the practice of Data Science and the various domains such as Artificial Intelligence, Internet of Things (IoT) or Industry & Production 4.0.
